copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

The following insane and senseless paragraph is from the Washington Times:

Gov. John G. McCullough has arrived from New York and will spend some time with us at his summer residence in North Bennington. The poor are always with us but our governor, "all."

Such an attack is entirely uncalled for. It passed when the list of campaign cards was flying about promiscuously a year ago in the heat of the political campaign, but it is wholly uncalled for now when the people of the state are viewing Gov. McCullough's position in an impartial light.

There are some who cry that the state is "going to the dogs" and every crime that is committed is attributable to the license local option law. Drinking is no worse today than it was 50 or 100 years ago. Statistics will be larger as the population increases. We believe this world is growing better and that there is a far greater opportunity today than ever before for a man to make the most out of life for good.—Gronon Times.

Editor Lord is optimistic and sensible in his views of the situation. If some of the everyday grumblers would be more cheerful and find less fault the temptation to drink would be still less.

The Oxford Hotel in Manchester, N.H., has lost its license and in addition the license commissioners of that state have called for a forfeiture of the bonds which amount to $2,000. Unfortunately as it may seem, that, however, was the only proper course to follow. Here was a license holder who had violated the stipulations of his license, and, to all intents and purposes, had done so with a full understanding of what he was doing. In fact, it is said that the proprietors of the Oxford Hotel expected they would be asked to give up their license. The New Hampshire commissioners took the best course and the revoking of this one license may prove to be a wholesome lesson to other holders of licenses.

The evils of the sweat shop system were brought out in a recent lecture at Burlington by John Graham Brooks, president of the Consumers' League, and some of the conditions were so strongly stated that they will bear a repeating. During the course of his remarks Mr. Brooks said that the Consumers League is not a fad. He said that "the English government refuses to purchase goods made in a sweat shop and spoke of the advancement along that line that is being made in other countries. In speaking of the conditions of those working in sweat shops Mr. Brooks said that nearly one-third of the victims in New York shops are affected with tuberculosis and that garments made there also carried other diseases that were scattered broadcast throughout the country. The question of disease from sweat shop labor is not a local one, as garments made in the 40,000 sweat shops in and about New York are sent all over the country, for that city has become the great distributing point for the country." The speaker also strongly condemned child labor and said that the theory that a child should take care of its mother is wrong and that the mother should be taken care of by charity until the child is old enough and developed enough to begin work. Child labor dwarfs the child and renders him incapable of working.

ABOUT THE STATE.

Items of Interest Gleaned From Our Exchanges.

Senator Redfield Proctor has contributed $1,000 towards the $50,000 endowment fund for the Burr and Burton Seminary. The sum of $15,000 is yet needed to complete the amount. Several of the largest contributions are conditional on that amount being raised.

The house and barn belonging to Napoleon Gordon, who lives about a mile from Richford village on the Hardwood hill road, were burned Thursday evening between 10 and 11 o'clock, together with most of the household goods. The loss is about $1,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert L. McDonald of North Hinsdale, N.H., says the Brattleboro Reformer, started out on their wedding trip Wednesday, in a carriage. The crowd of relatives threw rice and old shoes at them. The rice and shoes struck the horse which was frisky. The horse ran away and threw the newly married couple on a ledge. No bones were broken, but the wedding trip was postponed.

A unique relic of the Civil war, to be seen in the show window of J. D. Mitchell, at Randolph, is a home-made sword and scabbard taken from the rebels in the battle before Petersburg, Va., April 2, 1865, and loaned for exhibition by Wm. H. Kenney. The weapon is much shorter than the ordinary sword and was evidently made out of a rasp file ground down, as the file marks can be plainly seen on the broad, sharp blade. It is fitted with a wooden handle and the pieces of the leather scabbard are held together with rivets of lead. All the manufacturers were located at the North, and the Southern soldier had to be armed and equipped sometimes, not as the law, but as necessity directed.
